

The Transaction Club — Discovery Call Recap

Client: Peter Liang & Jiang | Date: September 28, 2026

Client

- Peter Liang and his business partner, Jiang
- peterlianghomes@gmail.com

Company

- The Transaction Club — a real estate transaction coordination (TC) service
- In business 10 years

What they actually do

- B2B, service-based business — their clients are real estate agents, not homebuyers or sellers
- Most agents use a transaction coordinator because they don't have time to manage files and chase signatures themselves
- Peter and Jiang handle that for them: managing files and coordinating client signatures on the agent's behalf
- Niche service — they want to grow it, eventually scaling into a franchise model
- Peter wants the marketing/client-acquisition side to run without him being personally hands-on

What the site needs to do

- 3–5 pages, informational — showcase what they do and build trust with agents
- No client login or portal — confirmed directly, it never came up as a need
- Proof/credibility pages — showing their process and track record

Key feature: Claim your free closing gift

- A recurring, service-based referral/marketing tool
- Once they finish a file for an agent, the agent can claim a free closing gift
- Gift is a physical item — hand-dropped off same day if local, or mailed within 48 hrs if elsewhere in-state

- Flow: button on page 1 or 2 ("Claim your free closing gift") → embedded form (agent's name, address, listing address) → info emailed to Peter & Jiang → they hand-deliver or mail the gift themselves

Key feature: Google reviews page

- They want a page showing their Google reviews
- He said he needs help setting this up — worth clarifying whether that means displaying existing reviews on the site, or setting up his Google Business Profile in the first place

Decision & timeline

- Confirmed: moving forward with the Monthly plan — $125/month + $350 deposit
- Timeline: 2–4 weeks

Follow-up before sending the proposal

- Does he need any tracking on the gifts themselves? Current assumption: no — gifts are physical and mailed/dropped off by Peter and Jiang directly, not shipped through a courier the site would track. Flag in the proposal email that tracking is possible but would change scope/cost.
- Google reviews: does he want reviews displayed on the site, or help setting up his Google Business Profile itself?
